

Use of Personal Information

When providing answers to questions and other requests for information, the JISF may receive personal information concerning individuals who submitted these requests. The JISF has established the following rules concerning the use of this information for the protection of personal information.

Purpose of use

Personal information is used solely to respond to requests for information.

Provision to third parties

To reply properly to requests for information, the JISF may share information, including personal information, with its member companies or other third parties. The JISF will never provide personal information to third parties without that individual's prior consent in any other cases except when required by law.

Outsourcing of handling of personal information

The JISF does not outsource tasks that involve personal information.

Voluntary nature of provision of personal information

Individuals voluntarily provide their personal information to the JISF. If this information is not provided, the JISF will be unable to respond to requests for information.

Requests for actions involving personal information

Individuals have the right to ask the JISF to provide information about the purpose of using their personal information and the contents of their personal information held by JISF, to perform corrections, additions or deletions of personal information, to terminate the use of personal information or remove this information, or to stop the provision of personal information to third parties.
